

Case Study

Investment Company

Having worked with Perivan for over 10 years, we now truly regard them as an extension of our marketing support team.

They understand that different members of our team have different levels of print knowledge, and tailor their approach accordingly. The team is highly proactive and not afraid to challenge to ensure we achieve the best outcome.

Our relationship goes so far beyond a traditional printer/customer one. They certainly do things the average printer wouldn't do; they're always happy to give their time for us to pick their brains on projects that may never come to fruition. The Perivan team covers huge knowledge gaps for us, as well as being fast and responsive, allowing our sales teams to respond to customer requests quickly.

Their relationship with our team has grown as we have. Now, when we bring on board new people or divisions, we introduce Perivan from the start as part of the induction process.

The Perivan team is always a fantastic support and partner to us. This was highlighted more than ever during the pandemic; they adapted overnight in lockdown, remaining highly responsive and available, and meaning all our projects continued seamlessly. They always deliver, no matter how last-minute the project.

We always say, "If in doubt, call Perivan". They genuinely can help us with anything we need.
